Application for Approval of Freehold or Survey Strata Subdivision

Subdivision process

1. The WAPC refers applications to the relevant local government and service providers. Applications may be referred to any public body, local government or private utility for objections or recommendations. The nature of individual proposals and/or factor/s affecting the subject land will determine to which public bodies and private utilities the application will be referred.
2. The WAPC will consider a report on the application. The report takes into account any region scheme and/or local planning scheme, relevant WAPC policies, comments from referral agencies, physical attributes or conditions of the site and other relevant matters.
3. The WAPC may approve an application with or without conditions, or refuse an application.
4. Subdivision approval is valid for three years for subdivisions of five lots and less, and four years for subdivisions of six lots and more (s 145 Planning and Development Act 2005). The applicant is to apply for WAPC endorsement prior to approval expiring before registration of title can proceed. Western Australian planning legislation does not allow for any extension of this time.
5. If the WAPC decides to refuse an application or to approve an application subject to conditions, under the Planning and Development Act 2005, the applicant may lodge a request with the WAPC to reconsider the refusal or conditions. The request must be lodged in writing on a form 3A within 28 days of the decision. The request must include information to explain why the WAPC should reconsider its decision and must be accompanied by the correct application fee.
6. Section 251 of the Planning and Development Act 2005 provides a right to apply to the State Administrative Tribunal for a review of a decision of the WAPC to refuse an application or to impose conditions of approval. An application for a review to the tribunal is to be submitted in accordance with part 14 of the Planning and Development Act 2005 and part 2 of the State Administrative Tribunal Rules 2004, within 28 days of the date of the decision. The tribunal can be contacted at:

8. The WAPC will endorse a subdivision on a plan or diagram that has been certified correct by the Western Australian Land Information Authority (Landgate). The WAPC must be satisfied that the plan is in accordance with the approval and that all conditions have been complied with.
9. The applicant can then apply to Landgate for new titles. Applications for title must be made within two years of the WAPC endorsement date. Landgate can be contacted at:

Acid sulfate soils

The State Government has published acid sulfate soils risk mapping which is referred to in the WAPC's Acid Sulfate Soils Planning Guidelines. If your land falls within a 'high to moderate' acid sulfate soils risk area a condition may be imposed on any approval issued requiring you to submit an acid sulfate soils self-assessment and possibly conduct a site investigation and implement an acid sulfate soils management plan.

Not all of the state is covered by the risk mapping, and it is possible that pockets of acid sulfate soils may be found in areas shown on the risk maps as having a moderate to low risk where acid sulfate soil occurrence is generally greater than 3 m below natural surface.

Accordingly, form 1A asks you whether the characteristics of the site or your local knowledge lead you to form the view that your land is located in an area where there is a significant risk of disturbing acid sulfate soils.

A general description of the locations where acid sulfate soils are likely to be found (eg low-lying, wet areas) is set out in appendix 3 of the WAPC's Acid Sulfate Soils Planning Guidelines.

More information is available from the Planning website at <http://www.planning.wa.gov.au/>

Contaminated sites

Applicants are required to provide information on previous potentially contaminating activities carried out on the site, and whether the site has been classified or reported under the Contaminated Sites Act 2003 (CS Act).

Guidelines and fact sheets available from DER advise you on how to determine whether a site has previously supported a potentially contaminating activity, and how to access information on reported contaminated sites in Western Australia.

If any site or sites within the application area have been classified you must indicate 'yes' and provide a copy of a basic summary of records (BSR) with the form 1A. Where the application area contains more than one contaminated site a BSR must be provided for each site.

If the application area contains any site that has been reported or is required to be reported under the CS Act and the site is currently under assessment by DER, you must indicate 'yes' and provide a copy of a letter from DEC notifying the applicant that the site has been reported and is under assessment.

More information is available from the DER website at <http://www.der.wa.gov.au/your-environment/contaminated-sites>

Liveable Neighbourhoods

Liveable Neighbourhoods is an operational policy for the design and assessment of structure plans (regional, district and local) and subdivision of greenfield and urban infill sites where 20 or more lots are to be created. A view only copy of Liveable Neighbourhoods is available from the PlanningWA website at <http://www.planning.wa.gov.au/> under the Liveable Neighbourhoods policy should be supported by documentation addressing the relevant criteria of Liveable Neighbourhoods. The application information guide contained in the policy document details the information requirements to accompany the form 1A.

Local planning scheme amendment and structure planning

1. For land that is subject to a proposed local planning scheme and/or region scheme amendment, a subdivision application lodged prior to gazettal of the amendment affecting the subject land may be regarded as premature and may be refused.
2. Local planning schemes may require structure plans to be prepared and endorsed by the relevant local government and the WAPC as a means of facilitating orderly subdivision and development. A subdivision application lodged prior to the endorsement of a suitable structure plan by the WAPC may be regarded as premature and may be refused.
